

“Where the real African Adventure begins”

Mokoro Trips (with minimum pax of 2 people)

If you are looking for a safari experience that immerses you in nature, there is no better way than by Mokoro. This traditional dugout wooden canoe offers you the opportunity to get closer to nature and experience the tranquillity of the Okavango Delta from water level.

We recommend this experience if you are in the Okavango Delta as it is one of the iconic and unique activities offered in Botswana. It's great to combine a mokoro experience with game drives and walks.

The best time to venture out in a mokoro is July to October, when water levels are high, and the skies are almost permanently blue.

We have packages for 1,2, and 3 days and longer trips can be arranged as per client's request.

A mokoro poler will be introduced to you – he/she will be your boatman and guide throughout the trip. Depending on the length of the trip, you can expect to spend a few hours poling on the mokoro, having lunch along the way, or a lunch break in the nearest island in the Delta.

If an overnighting trip, the poler will find a beautiful island campsite and help you collect some firewood for cooking. Remember, this is the bush and there are no facilities – it's back to basics: with hot shower, and a dug-out toilet. Just the untapped wilderness experience.

While you are on the trip, instructions from the guide are vital as they are more familiar with the area. He will show you extravagant Delta, he will also keep you out of trouble as they are always vigilant whilst in the bush.
